The Challenge

Data privacy regulations continue to proliferate around the globe while COVID-19 restrictions are creating new challenges.

Building a defensible data privacy framework requires a thoughtful, agile approach that will enable businesses to adapt quickly, and to stay in compliance with each new regulatory requirement.

The COVID-19 privacy challenges that have emerged, such as remote work, employee health monitoring, and data sharing, require careful consideration and expertise to manage correctly.

Privacy can be both innovative and reflective of the values of the company, and should be embraced as a business
